3. An Example of Case Management in an Outreach Service

AN EXAMPLE - MAYA OUTREACH SERVICE

An example of a case management approach for working with people in a small regional outreach service is described below. The process has been written for a fictitious service called Maya Outreach Service.

REMEMBER...

The material in this section is an example only, and can be used by services to develop their own case management policies and procedures. The information is included on the floppy disk which accompanies the Resource Kit and services are free to copy, and adapt the information for their own use.

Maya Outreach Service provides an information, support and referral service for people who are homeless, or at risk of homelessness. The service is run by a committee and employs just one SAAP worker.

Maya Outreach Service uses a manual system for recording client information. This includes:

- a card index system to keep a record of the names of existing and previous clients;
- a request for service form to record one-off requests for advice/information;
- case files to record information about work with clients where the contact has been more than one-off;
- forms for request for assistance, client details, support plan, case closure, client consent and case notes.

IMPORTANT!

WHO SHOULD USE THIS EXAMPLE

The types of service for whom this section applies may be small country based services, outreach or brokerage services or newly developing services.

Adopting a case management approach means taking a holistic view of working with clients. This includes looking at the history of client involvement with the service and involves helping the client to identify things that they want to change, and the steps necessary to achieve those changes.

MAYA OUTREACH SERVICE: CASE MANAGEMENT POLICY

The target group for Maya Outreach Service is any person or family who is homeless or at risk of homelessness, residing in the region.

Maya Outreach Service has developed the following policies on working with homeless people:

- staff will receive appropriate training in working with the target group. This will include training in:
 - cross-cultural communication
 - mental health issues
 - addictive behaviours
 - dealing with violent/aggressive clients;
- staff will receive training in case management, including the service's case management policy and procedures;
- the telephone interpreter service will be used when the client does not speak and/or understand English sufficiently well;
- clients are provided with the service/s requested where possible. If it appears that the client has complex or multiple issues/needs, they are encouraged to participate in a comprehensive assessment and planning process;

3. An Example of Case Management in an Outreach Service

- the assessment process will take account of:
 - the history of the client's involvement with the service
 - the presenting issues
 - the client's involvement with other services (with their permission)
 - any linguistic or cultural needs
 - the need for skill development including financial management, budgeting, accessing community services, personal development and parenting
 - the need of recreational activities or employment skills, or training;
- where ongoing support to the client has been negotiated, follow-up appointments should be made. These should be at least weekly;
- if the client does not contact the service for four weeks, then the file should be closed. Further contact with the client will automatically re-open the file;
- Maya Outreach Service will play an active role in regional coordinating forums, and will establish linkages and protocols with services relevant to the target group.

The case management process outlined in this example should be read in conjunction with Maya's Case Management Policy detailed in Section 8: Example Policy and Procedures File.

MAYA OUTREACH SERVICE: CASE MANAGEMENT PROCESS

ENTRY/SCREENING

When a referral is made to Maya Outreach Service either through a self-referral or a referral from another agency, the following steps are followed:

1. Assess whether an interpreter is required, and if so, arrange one.
2. Assess whether the person just requires information/referral or whether ongoing support is needed.
3. If you are unable to assist, enter the relevant details in the turnaways book.
4. If you are able to assist, take down the client's details and the details of the referring agency (if applicable) on the Request for Service form (see the Client Information Pack below).
5. Check to see if the client has used the service in the last five years by checking the Client Index Cards. If they have used the service before check the previous records.

Information Only (first time clients)

If the person just requires one-off information/referral, explain the options available to them and provide the relevant information about services which will be able to help. Record this information on the Request for Service form and file the form in the manilla folder for 'One-Off Requests'. Complete a Client Index Card and file in the Card Index.

Information Only (previous client)

If the person is just requesting information, but has contacted the service previously, the following steps are followed:

1. Attach the new Request for Service form to the previous Request for Service form.
2. Ask the client about the outcome of the previous contact and whether they still require assistance with the issues raised. Note the details on the case notes.
3. If the client has outstanding issues which they would like to work on, offer to assist them with developing a support plan. Arrange a time to sit down together and do this.
4. If the client just requires information and referral, provide them with the range of options available to them and information about services which will be able to help.
5. Record details on the Request for Service form. Use a Case Notes form if additional space is required.
6. Start a client file, file the Request for Service form and Case Notes in a manilla file. Write the client's name on the name in top right hand corner of the file.
7. If you have arranged to have further contact with the client, allocate a worker to follow-up. File the client file in the 'Open Files' drawer of the filing cabinet. If the contact appears to be one-off, file the manilla file in the One-Off Requests box.

ASSESSMENT/PLANNING/DIRECT SERVICE

When the person has requested support and agreed to work on a support plan, arrange to sit down with the person to do an assessment of their needs. The steps to follow for assessment, planning and direct service are:

3. An Example of Case Management in an Outreach Service

1. Complete a Client Details form.
2. Run through the Client Assessment Checklist noting relevant details on the Case Notes form. If the situation is really complex, or if the client is distressed, just take down the urgent or crisis needs. Further details can be taken later. Use the assessment checklist as a prompt for issues to be considered.
3. Attend to urgent needs for assistance immediately. If the person is homeless, arrange some emergency accommodation for them.
4. Assess whether the client would like to be linked into a worker or service from their own language or cultural background. If so, and if this is possible, arrange to refer the client, or work together with a culturally appropriate worker from another service.
5. Explain to the client how the service works, and their rights and responsibilities.
6. Assist the client to develop goals and set tasks which address the needs identified in the assessment. Consider what referrals may be appropriate. Write these down on a support plan in language familiar to the client. If necessary use an interpreter service to assist the client to write a plan in their own language.
7. Make sure the client understands the support plan and the tasks that they have undertaken to do.
8. Carry out the tasks that you have agreed to do, and if required, assist the client to carry out their tasks.
9. Make another time to meet with the client to review their situation.
10. Make sure they know how to contact you should they need to get in touch before your next meeting.

COORDINATION WITH OTHER SERVICES

When making referrals to other services:

1. Check that the client wishes to be referred to another service. If possible, give them the name of the worker in the other service who they will be working with. Where appropriate get their consent to the referral in writing using the Client Consent Form (see Client Information Pack at the end of this section).
2. If a written referral is appropriate, use the Referral To Another Service form.
3. Fax a copy of the Referral To Another Service form to the other service straight after the referral has been arranged.

3. An Example of Case Management in an Outreach Service

4. Always check that the client understands why the referral is being made and the service they should receive.
5. If necessary, accompany the client to another service and advocate on their behalf.
6. If a local service is not available, find out what other services are in your region and contact them to find out what assistance they can provide.

MONITORING AND REVIEW

1. At least once a week, the Maya Outreach worker meets with the client to review his/her situation. This means working through the support plans with the client, and checking that both the Maya Outreach Service and the client have done what they said they would.
2. For tasks which have been completed note any achievements and check if there were any problems, and if any other follow-up tasks need to be done.
3. For tasks not done, check why not and identify any difficulties or barriers which have stopped the tasks being completed. Consider other ways to achieve the goal/s.
4. Check with the client how relationships with their informal support network are. If there are problems in these relationships, the client may lack motivation to work on the support plan.
5. If necessary change the goals and the actions written on the support plan, or add to them. If appropriate write up a new support plan.
6. Write up case notes as necessary.

FOLLOW-UP, EVALUATION AND CASE CLOSURE

When a person leaves Maya Outreach Service:

1. Sit down with the client to identify what they have achieved and what goals they are still working on. Reinforce the achievements.
2. Let him/her know of other services in the community which will be able to assist and make sure they are linked into those services. Arrange a follow-up if necessary.
3. Let him/her know what assistance you will be able to provide in the future.

3. An Example of Case Management in an Outreach Service

4. Give the client an opportunity to complete a Client Feedback Form. Completed forms should be sent to the Chairperson or placed in a sealed box in the office.
5. Complete the paperwork:
 - write up any case notes and complete the Case Closure Form;
 - using the information on the Client Details form, complete the SAAP National Data Collection Agency form ready for sending to the National Data Collection Agency.
6. Place the closed file in the Closed Files box on the Coordinator's desk.

AT THE END OF EACH WEEK

At the end of each week:

1. Review the One-Off Requests and Closed Files for the week to ensure that no further follow-up is required.
2. Record the cases on the statistical data sheets as required.
3. File 'Closed Files' in the closed files drawer of the filing cabinet.
4. File 'One-Off Requests' in the one-off requests section in the Closed Files drawer of the filing cabinet.

AT THE END OF EACH MONTH

At the end of each month:

1. Collate the turnaways statistics for the month.
2. Prepare statistical reports for the management committee and sends the National Data Collection Agency forms to the National Data Collection Agency as required.

AT THE END OF EACH YEAR

At the end of each year:

1. Check through the one-off requests and closed client files for clients who have not contacted the service for five years.

3. An Example of Case Management in an Outreach Service

2. Remove the client's index card and put it in their file.
3. Make a note of these client records and archive them in a labelled box for a further two years.

NOTE!

For more information regarding the management of client information refer to Section 2: Practising Case Management, Attachment 5.
